Dear students

I hope you are all well. Well done to all those who continue to do the work set by their teachers and abide by the lockdown rules. This is an unprecedented time and one that all citizens have a part to play in beating the Covid-19 virus. During the past week I have been phoning parents to say well done to those students who are completing the work and receiving classcharts rewards from their teachers. Mr Bridge is also sending out emails. The feedback I have had from parents has been fantastic and in many cases I have heard some inspiring stories. One thing I can say with certainty though is that the whole Bingley Grammar School community is working together to protect your education and future and never before have your parents played such a pivotal role in supporting this. Where you can please make sure you thank parents and carers who are being especially patient with their children during the lockdown. Every Thursday we clap for the NHS but why not choose a day at home to applaud the families who are supporting the school and your education.

Parents evening

Here is an idea I thought of today…

Organise a mini parents’ evening at home

Sit down with a parent/carer and ask for feedback about how well you have done.

Ask to be set some targets to improve and also ask for some positive comments too

You could even ask for a written report.

The same day have an evening to celebrate your parent or carer’s support

Cook them a nice meal or even just say a big thank you in your own way

Ask them what they would like to do as a communal activity, suggest a film night or a quiz night

Write them a thank you letter or make a card. As strange as this sounds, one day in the
